Carmen Stetter works as a trainee lawyer in the Regulated Markets, Competition, Information Technology and Intellectual Property Team at Walder Wyss in Zurich.

Carmen Stetter works primarily in German and English and speaks French as well. She has a basic knowledge of Portuguese and Korean.

She studied law at the Universities of Zurich and Lausanne. Before starting university, she gained several years of work experience in an accounting firm. During her studies, she first worked as a tutor for criminal and private law in Zurich and then moved to a large Swiss software manufacturer, where she was active as part of the legal team in the areas of data protection, contract law and IT law. She also participated in a national and an international moot court and completed internships both at Walder Wyss and the public prosecutor's office in the canton of St. Gallen.
